

REDCROW

DARK, SULTRY, HUMID ROOTS MUSIC

Crushed velvet and broken glass, cigar smoke and a gathering storm. RedCrow is a band of contrary themes. Americana roots music shares a whiskey with wide ambient soundscapes; concise, lyrically rich songs swap cigarettes with longer ambling works that only end when it seems right to do so. Moonlight keys and chiming guitars, tight soul-pulsing bass and vocals like a breeze beneath your skin.

ARIA-nominated singer-songwriter Sarah Calderwood (Sunas) fronts the band that also consists of Triple J Unearthed finalist Mirko Ruckels (Pretty Violet Stain, Cousin Em, Deepspace), internationally-acclaimed double bassist Markus Karlsen (The Company, Pirate Brides) and author and guitarist Paul Brandon (Sunas, TwoCrows). Instruments include acoustic & electric guitars, keys, banjo, upright bass, flutes & whistles, ukulele and four voices.

Sarah, Paul and Mirko have worked together on many other projects, including 2 top-ten charting albums for the ABC and the Best World Music ARIA-nominated 'As Night Falls', and Markus was a frequent live collaborator. All band members have toured extensively both in Australia and internationally, and are regulars of the festival circuit in other high profile bands such as Sunas and The Company. RedCrow came about through the sheer enjoyment of playing with each other and the crackle of stepping out of individual comfort zones.

RedCrow's debut album, Burning North Sky, will be released in August. Recorded in Brisbane and mastered by in Los Angeles by Gavin Lurssen (Tom Waits, Eric Clapton, Robert Plant), it's a contemporary blend of roots, folk, rock, and Americana. All material is original to the band. With the release of the CD, they are already confirmed for several major events including the Dorrigo folk-bluegrass, Maleny and Gold Coast festivals.
